

TOUR REPORT

BIRD BANDING WORKSHOP

October 5-13, 2000

Leader: David Ascanio E.

This list contains all the birds, mammals and reptiles seen in the 2000 Bird Banding Workshop. Los Roques proved to be an important stop-over for passerines and shorebirds while in Henri Pittier we witnessed local and large distance migrations.

One day in Los Roques we were able to see concentrations of 20-30 passerines flying over the sea in direction to the south, although the most impressive experience happens on our first morning in Portachuelo Pass when in a clouded morning we did report more than 3000 individuals migrating including Northern waterthrushes, Blackpoll warblers and even a Connecticut Warbler.

Besides the study of habitats and microhabitats, in the banding station we discern about the relationship between age and plumage of many species of birds including the relation between the undertail coverts with the age of some species of hummingbirds, the wing coverts determining age in some species of swift and the primary feathers determining age of Olive-striped Flycatcher. We also measured the wing, tail (rectrices), tarsus and bill of every individual banded while other times we were working in the weight or the molting conditions. For every migrant, fat was observed and every 30 minutes weather conditions were annotated.

In Henri Pittier we were focused on understanding the banding operation while in Los Roques we focused on Island Biogeography and discussed the presence of local species as well as reported interesting feeding behavior of some migrant species. We also visited the Rancho Grande museum and understood the importance of specimens for science.

The Portachuelo Pass have been known to science for more than four decades but is recently when the amount of information available is letting scientist to determinate the functions and importance of Henri Pittier as a tool to protect such a rich and diverse avifauna.

In the name of the banding staff I want to thank you all for signing up in such a wonderful learning experience and also for the great contribution made in your name to the banding operation of Venezuela.

I'm sure I will see you again in the neotropics, maybe in the wet forest of Peru, in the Puna of Ecuador or in the Guayanan Shield of Venezuela!

Organizations of this Report

This report includes 3 columns of information. The first one indicates the total number of species seen. If the species was only heard will be indicated with an "H". The second indicates the regions where it was reported according to the abbreviations used below, and the third column indicates detailed or interesting information about the species. Whenever a given species have been seen and heard, the descriptive conditions are mentioned in the third column. Please note that this report follows mostly the nomenclature of De Schauensee and Phelps in "A Guide to the Birds of Venezuela" with few up-dates from Ridgely & Tudor "The Birds of South America". When there is a new English name for a given species, the previous one will be written into brackets. The common names in italic mean recent splits or discoveries within the boundaries of Venezuela.

The following abbreviations are used in this report:

(LR) Los Roques National Park

Gran Roque Island, Francisqui Key, Canquises and Dos Mosquises)

(HP) Henri Pittier National park

Portachuelo Pass, Rancho Grande Biological Station, Ocumare swamp, La Boca and the city of Maracay)

(GN) General

Used when the species occurs in both regions or is widespread within the boundaries of Venezuela.

Finally, those species marked with an asterisc (*) are the ones banded at Portachuelo Pass.
